DOCUMENT PURPOSE

Building a consistent brand matters, especially when the work moves fast and lives online. These guidelines exist to keep Lazarvision feeling recognisable, no matter the format or platform.

This document sets the standard for how the brand shows up. It covers the core elements such as logo, colour, typography, and overall tone, and shows how they come together in practice. The goal isn't to restrict creativity, but to give it structure so the work stays sharp, clear, and intentional.

Use this as a reference point when creating anything under the Lazarvision name. Consistency is what turns good content into something people recognise and come back to.

Like the brand itself, this is not fixed. It will evolve over time as the work grows and changes.

BRAND STORY

Lazarvision was born from a simple but clear realisation: the sharpest perspective in the room wasn't being used properly. After years in the corporate world, Lazar had built a reputation for quick wit, unexpected connections, and the kind of observations that made people laugh, then pause. Most of it lived in passing conversations, voice notes, or moments that landed once and disappeared. It became clear that wasn't enough.

The name says it plainly: Lazar, and how he sees things. That perspective is the product. Lazarvision sits between content that is loud and empty and content that is dense and forgettable. The subject matter can be anything such as tech, psychology, music, healthcare, capitalism, and everything in between, but the lens is consistent: sharp, self-aware, and worth paying attention to.

What sets Lazarvision apart isn't the topic, it's the way it's seen. It's not performative, and it's not trying to fit a category. It's built on instinct, a low tolerance for bullshit, and a commitment to making things that actually land. The goal is simple: make people laugh, and then make them think. Not necessarily in that order.

This is just the beginning. There's no playbook and no intention to water it down. Lazarvision will evolve, but the point stays the same: say something worth saying, and say it in a way people don't ignore.

MISSION & VISION STATEMENT

Our vision and mission define the intent behind everything Lazarvision creates. They keep the work focused today, while giving a clear sense of where the brand is heading over time.

The vision keeps things moving forward: to build Lazarvision into a profitable, multichannel platform that influences culture, sparks conversation, and evolves with the media landscape without losing its voice or becoming performative.

The mission shapes the day-to-day: to create culturally relevant content that makes people laugh and think, raising the bar for entertainment while staying authentic, perspective-based, and irreverent.

Together, they keep the work grounded in what matters: making content that lands, builds momentum, and continues to push Lazarvision forward.

VISION STATEMENT

A future where Lazarvision evolves into a profitable, multichannel platform that influences culture, sparks conversation, and adapts with the media landscape, without losing its unique voice or becoming performative.

MISSION STATEMENT

To create culturally relevant content that makes people laugh AND think, raising the bar for what entertainment can be while staying authentic, perspective-based, and irreverent while doing it.

BRAND VALUES

Our values are the foundation of who we are and how we speak. They define the spirit of Lazarvision, shaping the way we approach every topic, every take, and every moment we have someone’s attention.

These principles are more than talking points; they are the standard the content is held to, the instincts behind every edit, and the qualities we want the audience to walk away feeling.

From short-form chaos to long-form conversation, our values remind us why this started and keep the bar exactly where it belongs.

AUTHENTICITY

Lazarvision rejects performance and polish in favor of a voice that is real, unfiltered, and rooted in who Lazar actually is, including the contradictions.

02

PERSPECTIVE

Lazarvision runs on sharp recontextualization, creating a viewpoint that makes familiar topics feel newly strange, funny, or obvious.

03

NIHILISM

A polished, self-aware nihilism that rejects performative meaning, keeps emotional stakes deliberately low, and channels existential indifference into sharp taste.

04

TIRED-HOT

Effortless magnetism born from high standards, low theatrics, and the confidence to look slightly undone while completely in control.

05

INTELLIGENT CHAOS

Lazarvision channels natural velocity into something intentional so the chaos feels alive while the thinking stays crisp.

06

DO NO HARM

Lazarvision refuses cheap shots: it can be sharp, cynical, and blunt without turning people into targets or using humiliation as entertainment.

BRAND TONE

Our tone of voice defines the way we communicate with the world. It’s not just about what we say, but how we say it. This shapes the experience people have whenever they encounter the brand.

As a personal media brand, our tone blends the sharpness of real opinion with the warmth of someone you actually want to listen to. We are expressive yet considered, provocative yet self-aware, fast yet never sloppy. This balance allows us to hold the attention of a stranger, keep the loyalty of a regular, and always leave the audience feeling like they got something out of it.

These attributes and tonal spectrums guide the way we write, speak, and present ourselves. They ensure that whether we’re cutting a short-form clip, opening a long-form episode, or putting a sticker on a bathroom wall somewhere, we sound consistently like who we are: magnetic, unfiltered, and always with a point.

MARKET POSITIONING

Our market positioning shows where Lazarvision sits within the current landscape of podcast and cultural media brands. While many competitors lean toward either high-energy performance or safe, conventional formats, Lazarvision occupies a space that blends experimentation with a more controlled and detached presence.

We are positioned in the bottom-right quadrant [experimental and cool/detached] because the brand is built around perspective rather than personality. It moves away from performative energy and instead focuses on sharp, considered commentary delivered with a sense of restraint, confidence, and cultural awareness.

This distinction sets Lazarvision apart from louder, personality-centric shows and more traditional formats. By holding this position, the brand establishes itself as something more intentional, and not just reacting to culture, but shaping how it’s seen, interpreted, and understood.

LOGO SUITE

OVERVIEW

The Lazarvision mark is built around two ideas that are inseparable from the brand itself: insight and precision. Together, they form a symbol that is designed to stop the scroll and not blend in.

The eye is the anchor. It communicates what Lazarvision is at its core: a perspective, a specific and uncompromising way of seeing things. And crucially, it is only half open. The hooded gaze is the visual embodiment of ‘tired-hot’, the brand’s most defining quality. It is the look of someone with extraordinarily high standards who simply cannot be bothered to perform them for you. Effortless magnetism. Completely in control, and entirely unbothered about whether you noticed.

The laser element doubles as both visual energy and a nod to the host himself. It captures the brand’s other defining quality: the ability to cut through low-effort content, noise, or the obvious take.

The tight kerning creates tension on the page. The letters pulled close, almost uncomfortable, reflecting the brand’s refusal to give things too much breathing room. There is no softness here, no open space to hide in.

The rough edge and texture oppose the over-produced or polished. This is not a brand that wants to look like it was built in a boardroom. The rawness is the point...it signals authenticity without announcing it, and edginess without the performance.

LOCK UPS

Our logo system is designed for flexibility, ensuring it remains consistent and recognisable across all applications.

The primary logos are the stacked and horizontal versions, used wherever space allows. They provide a clear, bold option for most use cases while maintaining a strong and distinctive presence.

The wordmark can be used where the brand mark is already present within an application.

The brand mark and LV initialism act as shorthand versions of the logo, ideal for small-scale use such as social media, thumbnails, and avatars. They function as a recognisable signal that can stand alone, and may also be used at larger scales for more dramatic impact.

Together, these elements create a flexible system that adapts across formats while keeping the identity sharp and consistent.

Minimum sizes (retina resolution)
The stacked and horizontal logos should be used at sizes where both the symbol and wordmark remain clearly readable. For digital use, the stacked logo should be no smaller than 45px in height, and the horizontal logo no smaller than 28px in height. For print, the minimum size is 16mm in height (stacked) and 10mm in height (horizontal).

The wordmark can scale smaller than the full lockups but must remain legible. For digital use, it should not appear below 45px in width, and for print, no smaller than 16mm in width.

The brand mark can be used at smaller sizes where space is limited, with a minimum of 16px in height for digital and 7mm in print.

The LV initialism is the smallest shorthand version and should be used when space is extremely limited or the brand mark is already present. It can scale down to 8px tall in digital applications and 4mm tall in print.

EXCLUSION ZONES

To ensure the Lazarvision logo always feels sharp and intentional, it’s important to give it enough space to breathe. The exclusion zone is the minimum area around the logo that must remain free from other text, graphics, or visual elements.

This clear space protects the legibility and impact of the logo across different applications. By respecting these boundaries, we ensure the mark remains confident, recognisable, and uncluttered in every context.

Each version of the Lazarvision logo has its own defined exclusion zone, based on simple proportions taken from the logo itself to keep things consistent and easy to apply.

Always maintain this space to preserve the clarity, presence, and overall integrity of the identity.

COLOUR PALETTE

COLOUR PALETTE

Our colour palette reflects the bold, expressive, and culturally driven nature of Lazarvision. Built around punchy tones, it creates a system that feels energetic, attention-grabbing, and familiar in the digital sphere.

The primary colours Lavender, Riot Pink, and Lemon form the core of the identity, balancing curiosity, energy, and brightness across all applications. Supporting shades of each colour add depth and flexibility, allowing the palette to adapt while maintaining a consistent visual language. A set of neutrals, Charcoal and Off White, ground the system and ensure clarity and readability when needed. Finally, the highlight colours, Cyan and Toxic Green, are used sparingly to inject moments of disruption and emphasis in digital contexts.

By using this palette consistently, the brand remains cohesive and instantly recognisable, while still allowing for variation and creative expression across content.

Note: The RGB/HEX codes provided are for digital applications. For printed materials, please refer to the corresponding CMYK values.

HIERARCHY

Our colour hierarchy ensures the Lazarvision palette is applied with clarity and control. By assigning proportions to each colour, we maintain a strong, consistent identity across every application.

Lavender, Riot Pink, and Lemon form the foundation of the system, carrying most of the visual weight and establishing the brand’s expressive tone. Charcoal provides structure and contrast, grounding layouts and ensuring clarity, while Off White introduces balance and breathing space where needed. Cyan and Toxic Green act as controlled highlights, used sparingly to create moments of emphasis and disruption.

Following this structure prevents overuse and keeps the identity consistent, intentional, and recognisably Lazarvision.

RECOMMENDED COMBINATIONS

Our colour combinations are designed to keep the Lazarvision identity bold, legible, and consistent across every application. By balancing our primary colours, neutrals, and highlights, we maintain a strong visual presence that always feels intentional and recognisable.

Midtone backgrounds form the foundation of the system and should be used most frequently. They provide core brand recognisability, along with contrast, and flexibility across digital applications, allowing the logo and typography to stand out clearly. Dark and Light backgrounds can be used to introduce variation or breathing space when needed, but should be applied sparingly as they reduce overall impact. Highlight colours should only be used on dark or light backgrounds, where they can fully pop and create clear moments of emphasis.

By following these combinations, the identity remains cohesive, confident, and visually sharp across every touchpoint.

LOGO APPLICATION

Consistent and considered use of our logo colours is essential to maintain clarity and recognition across all applications. In all cases, priority should be given to contrast. Always choose the version of the logo that ensures it remains clearly visible and uncompromised within its environment.

When placing the logo over photography, the preferred option is white, as it typically provides the strongest and most consistent contrast. If the image is particularly dark, coloured versions of the logo may be used where they improve visibility and impact.

TYPOGRAPHY

DISPLAY TYPEFACE

Our display typeface, Bootzy TM Condensed, is bold, expressive, and slightly imperfect. Its tight kerning creates a sense of tension and compression, giving headlines a sharp, immediate presence, while the subtle texture reflects the unpolished and raw nature of the content.

This typeface is designed for impact. It works best in short, high-impact moments such as titles and key statements, where its character can come through without overwhelming the layout. Used correctly, it adds energy and attitude while keeping the overall system intentional.

Bootzy TM Condensed should be used sparingly and never compete with the wordmark logo. It should always sit in balance with the rest of the typographic system to maintain clarity and control.

Note: Lazarvision requires this typeface to be set to ALL CAPS.

SUBHEADING TYPEFACE

Our subheading typeface, Special Gothic Condensed One, bridges the gap between expression and clarity within the Lazarvision system. It shares the condensed, impactful aesthetic of Bootzy TM Condensed, but in a cleaner, more controlled form that makes it suitable for more practical and everyday use.

This typeface is used for subheadings, supporting titles, and structured content where hierarchy and readability are important. It maintains the same tight, graphic feel as the display typeface, while providing a more refined and consistent appearance across layouts.

Special Gothic Condensed One should be used more regularly than Bootzy TM Condensed, helping to carry the identity through content without overwhelming it. It reinforces the visual language while keeping the overall system balanced, legible, and easy to apply across different formats.

TEXT TYPEFACE

Our text typeface, Inter, is used for its minimal, neutral aesthetic, providing clarity and readability across longer copy. It pairs seamlessly with Bootzy TM Condensed, ensuring the system feels balanced, with Inter offering restraint where Bootzy TM brings expression.

This typeface is used for body copy, captions, and supporting text, creating a clean and accessible reading experience across all applications. Its versatility makes it highly effective in digital environments, maintaining legibility at smaller sizes without drawing attention away from key visual elements.

Inter should be applied consistently to maintain clarity and cohesion, acting as a stable foundation that supports the more expressive parts of the identity without competing with them.

ACCENT TYPEFACE

Our accent typeface, Bootzy TM Regular, introduces a more expressive and informal layer to the Lazarvision typographic system. As a non-condensed version of the display typeface, it carries the same raw texture and character, while offering a more relaxed feel.

This typeface is used sparingly to add detail, nuance, and personality within compositions. Set in lowercase, it creates a clear contrast against the bold, all-caps headings, helping to introduce variation. It is best suited to artistic or expressive applications where a standard typeface would feel too clean or rigid.

Bootzy TM Regular should never be used for primary headings or body copy. Instead, it acts as an accent, supporting the overall system by adding subtle moments of character while maintaining balance and clarity.

HIERARCHY

Our typographic hierarchy establishes a clear system for how type should be used across all Lazarvision communications. It balances expression with clarity, ensuring the work feels consistent, legible, and intentional across every format.

Headings use Bootzy TM Condensed in all caps for bold, high-impact statements, bringing energy, tension, and attitude to the forefront. Subheadings use Special Gothic Condensed One to maintain the same condensed aesthetic in a cleaner, more structured form, supporting hierarchy without competing for attention. Inter is used for intro body and body copy, providing a minimal and highly readable foundation that balances the more expressive elements of the system. Bootzy TM Regular is used sparingly as an accent typeface, set in lowercase to introduce contrast and personality in more artistic or expressive moments.

The ratio between text sizes should remain consistent across applications to maintain hierarchy and readability. Start with a strong heading size appropriate to the format, then scale down through subheadings and body copy to ensure clear distinction between each level.

By following this hierarchy, the system remains structured but flexible, allowing Lazarvision to feel bold and expressive while staying clear, controlled, and easy to engage with.

TEXTURE & IMAGERY

Texture

Texture plays a key role in the Lazarvision identity, adding a raw, unpolished layer that reinforces the brand’s tone. It introduces a sense of imperfection that feels authentic and intentionally unrefined.

This is achieved through poster and paper overlays, as well as subtle monochromatic film grain applied in tools like Photoshop. These treatments help break the digital cleanliness of layouts, giving the work more depth and a tactile, real-world feel.

Texture should be used wherever practical, but is especially important across key applications such as posters, stickers, and social media banners. Applied consistently, it strengthens the overall aesthetic while keeping the work grounded and expressive.

Imagery

Imagery within Lazarvision is either treated or left completely raw. When treated, it should follow the established visual language, using halftone effects, collage-style compositions, texture and colour overlays to create contrast and energy.

When used without treatment, imagery should remain natural and unprocessed. Avoid studio photography, artificial lighting, or anything that feels staged or overly considered. The preference is for real, in-the-moment visuals that feel effortless and unforced.

The approach is intentional: either fully expressive or completely honest. Avoid anything that sits in between.

Suggested Halftone Pattern settings in Photoshop. Use as a starting point and refine towards the reference images here.

MOTION & CAPTIONS

Motion

Motion (including animation) in Lazarvision should feel fast, intentional, and slightly imperfect. It is not about smoothness or polish, but about energy, timing, and impact.

Use quick cuts, minimal easing, and simple graphic movement. Cuts should feel closer to TikTok pacing than cinematic editing. Type, icons, and key elements can animate, but avoid overly polished, cinematic, or complex transitions. Slight roughness or abrupt movement is acceptable where it adds to the overall feel.

Signature moments such as eye movement, laser sweeps, or starburst impacts can be used sparingly for emphasis. Motion should support the content and not compete with it.

Captions

Captions should be clear, direct, and easy to read, especially on mobile. Inter Bold is used as the primary typeface.

Captions should never exceed two lines and must not have the lines touching, maintaining clear spacing to improve legibility. Text should be set at a readable size with strong contrast against the background, typically positioned in the lower third.

When multiple speakers are conversing, alternate between brand colours (preferably yellow if the background permits) and white to differentiate voices. A subtle black outline must be applied to the outside of the text. Captions should appear in short, controlled bursts, avoiding long blocks of text. The goal is clarity first - captions are not where the loudness of Lazarvision should live.

ICONOGRAPHY

Our iconography style provides a clear and consistent way to represent ideas quickly and effectively. Designed with the same rough, textured edge as the main typography, these icons balance simplicity with character, ensuring they feel practical while still distinctly Lazarvision.

Each icon is built from simple forms with a slightly uneven, subtly hand-drawn quality, reinforcing the unpolished, human tone of the brand. Where possible, solid icons are preferred over outlines to maximise impact and legibility across different applications. Corners should be slightly rounded.

By using this style consistently, we create a recognisable visual language that supports content and strengthens the overall identity, ensuring every application feels connected, expressive, and unmistakably Lazarvision.

Tip: the textured edge effect can be easily applied Effect -> Distort & Transform -> Roughen in Adobe Illustrator as per the below settings (the size of the icon will impact its effect, so you will need to experiment to achieve a consistent aesthetic).
